Snake River yields body

HAGERMAN — Rescuers located what appears to be the body of Rick Jordan, 24, of Buhl, this morning in the Snake River near the Idaho Power plant at Thousand Springs. Jordan drowned the afternoon of Aug. 3 in a boating accident. He apparently fell into the river between Owsley and Gridley bridges about four miles south of Hagerman.

Twin Falls County Coroner Cloyce Edwards was at the scene this morning to identify the body.

Reagan to stump in NH

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Ex-California Gov. Ronald Reagan plans to campaign in New Hampshire's rerun U.S. Senate election for the Republican contender, UPI learned today. Reagan's participation on behalf of Louis Wyman will come just seven months before the state holds the nation's first 1976 presidential primary. Reagan is a possible contender in that race which President Ford also is expected to enter.

Reagan's chief New Hampshire supporter, Gov. Meldrim Thomson, said he would have a "major announcement" late this morning on "Reagan, obviously."

Faith an issue

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Democratic presidential hopeful Sargent Shriver says reviving public faith and confidence in government will be the major issue of the 1976 campaign. "The most important issue of all is the question of restoring faith in our government and our leaders," Shriver said Thursday. The former Peace Corps director said he was on an "organizational swing" through Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Denver courthouse bombed

DENVER (UPI) — A bomb consisting of eight to 10 sticks of dynamite was exploded at the federal courthouse shortly before midnight Thursday, destroying the north entrance to the building and breaking windows in surrounding buildings. No one was injured. Simon Tullia, assistant special agent in charge of the Denver office of the FBI, said a three-foot crater was blown in the base area of the doorway. He said the explosion blew debris into the basement parking area of the building and damaged a sprinkler head in the basement.

Tonsillectomies decline

DENTON, Kan. (UPI) — The president-elect of the Kansas Medical Society reports a 24 per cent decline in tonsillectomies in the past seven years because doctors are becoming aware that tonsils are disease fighters. "Recent studies reveal children are getting the same number of throat infections whether or not they have their tonsils removed. In many cases, infections just move lower down the respiratory tract after tonsils are removed," Dr. Emerson Yoder said Thursday.

Hits joblessness

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., has criticized the Ford Administration for accepting high levels of unemployment. Mondale said Thursday "the Administration allows for 9 per cent unemployment this year, 8 per cent next year and unemployment averaging 7 per cent for the rest of the decade." Mondale said predictions of an economic upturn are premature.

Sax player Adderley dies

GARY, Ind. (UPI) — Julian "Cannonball" Adderley, a wizard with the alto saxophone, died today at St. Mary's Medical Center, four weeks after suffering a massive stroke. He was 46. A spokesman said Adderley, who had been kept breathing by mechanical means while in the hospital, died shortly after 8:25 a.m. of "coronary arrest." He was in a coma when admitted July 13 to the intensive care unit and did not regain consciousness, the spokesman said.

Big-city smog invades rural US, threatens health

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Smog is now plaguing rural areas as well as big cities, and it may be necessary to impose pollution controls in small towns, says the Environmental Protection Agency.

Citing a new report, the agency said Thursday smog harmful to health is much more widespread than previously thought, with the nation's big cities acting like giant smokestacks spewing clouds of pollution that drift hundreds of miles into the countryside.

The initial measurements were made in rural areas of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland, the EPA said, with additional readings being taken this summer in other parts of the country. But already, it said, it is clear that smog, primarily from cars, is more than just an urban problem.

The report came shortly after President Ford asked Congress to further relax the Clean Air Act by freeing the exhaust standards for cars for the next five years.

But EPA Administrator Russell Train, asked what implication the report had for that request, said, "I honestly think probably very little."

He said the report was more of a long-term matter as opposed to short-term changes in the law.

Train told a news conference smog "is more widespread than originally believed and is occurring in some rural areas as well as urban areas."

The controls that might as a result be needed for nonurban areas would include the inspection of automobiles to make sure exhaust control devices are maintained properly, as well as curbs on the emission of fumes from gasoline stations and dry cleaning establishments.

Transportation controls or other limits on automobile use are not envisioned, Train said.

At the moment those kinds of controls are in effect or planned in only 30 urban areas around the country.

Rural towns where the report found levels of smog in excess of health standards were: Wilmington, Ohio; McConnelsville, Ohio; Wooster, Ohio; McHenry, Md.; and Dubois, Penn.

The five big cities with the worst violations of smog rules were, in order: Los Angeles, exceeding the health limit 15 per cent of the time during 1974; New Haven, Conn., exceeding it 13 per cent; Sacramento, Calif., 10 per cent; Denver, Colo., 7 per cent; and San Francisco 4 per cent.

There are no streams on Addison Avenue, but Thursday afternoon the Twin Falls street had its own bridge. Keith Sligar, Northwest Crane, Rigging and Transport Co., purchased the old steel Murlough Bridge and transported it to the Sligar yard on Addison Avenue West. It will be used for a storage building for the giant cranes the company operates. Sliding will be attached to the steel framework to form the building. (UPI Photo)

Libya holds 10 terrorists

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — A five-day drama that began Monday when Japanese Red Army guerrillas captured the U.S. Embassy in Kuala Lumpur ended early today when a Japanese Air Line DC8 landed at Tripoli. The 10 Red Army men were taken into custody and four substitute hostages who had flown half way around the world from the Malaysian capital were freed. The five guerrillas and their five fanatical Red Army colleagues, released from Japanese jails through their seizure of 53 hostages in Kuala Lumpur were taken away in windowless multi-ambulances to an unknown fate. The nine Japanese crewmen and four substitute hostages were preparing to return home.

A Libyan spokesman said acceptance of the Japanese terrorists did not mean that Libya will offer cooperation with Red Army activities. Libyan Communications Minister Nuri-Felluri told a news conference.

"Only high level pressure from Japan and Malaysia caused our decision to accept these men. We did accept this because of the humanity point of view and we wanted the hostages to arrive safe."

The DC8 which carried the guerrillas and their hostages to Tripoli was still sitting on the tarmac approximately a half mile from the terminal building late today and there was no evidence of refueling although the Japanese said they would depart by 11 a.m. EDT.

The Japanese government expressed "deep regret" today that it had to free five imprisoned radicals in exchange for 53 hostages.

Hailey woman killed

CHALLIS — A Hailey woman was killed in an automobile accident south of Challis Thursday evening.

Kathleen Marie House, 26, daughter of Mrs. Terry House, was killed in a head-on collision with a vehicle driven by Bill McKenzie, Kirkland, Wash.

McKenzie was taken to the Salmon hospital by ambulance. His wife, Gayle, and their four children, Brenda, 10; Rick, 14; Pam, 16; and Bill, 17, were all admitted later to the hospital.

The family was reported in fair to good condition this morning. Miss House was working as a boat operator for the U.S. Forest Service on the Middle Fork of the Salmon, according to the Custer County sheriff's office, which investigated the accident.

The sheriff's department said the accident occurred at 8 p.m. about five miles south of Challis on Highway 93.

White House warning cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House warned a House intelligence committee it was probing an "extremely sensitive" area in its investigation of alleged "cave-dropping" of overseas telephone calls by Americans, the committee chairman said today.

In an open session of the committee, the director of the National Security Agency declined public testimony on the allegations. "I believe a discussion of this question is properly handled in closed session," said Sen. Lew Allen Jr., head of the supersecret Defense Department agency. The committee then went into closed session to hear Allen.

In a statement read to the House Select Committee on Intelligence, Allen called the interception of telephone calls and other electronic transmissions to foreign countries one of America's "real secrets."

Grain mart soars

CHICAGO (UPI) — A killing combination of droughts and frosts in major crop producing areas of the world has sent grain futures skyrocketing and threatens to bring another round of increased food prices to American consumers.

Grain futures — prices quoted for delivery of grain at a full day — rose the permissible limit for a day's trading in principal markets Thursday.

The increases — which if continued would be reflected in consumer prices when the promised grains are delivered — have been blamed on hot, dry weather which has cut into projected record crops in the northern hemisphere, and frost-and-drought that has crippled crop development in producing nations across the equator.

Prices on the Chicago Board of Trade closed at contract highs in March, May and July, with May and July contracts at 10 1/2 cents a bushel.

The CBOT reported the lure of even higher prices also forced many farmers to hold back their corn, increasing buying pressure.

In Kansas City, wheat futures climbed 17 1/2 cents a bushel and similar prices were quoted at Minneapolis.

The jumps followed reports that European and Australian crops are suffering from dryness, and frost damage in Brazil was beginning to cause considerable concern in that nation.

The upward movement also was triggered by reports the Soviet Union will need to buy more grain in the international markets than has been thought originally.

A healthy winter wheat crop is already in place in the United States but a spokesman for the Kansas City Board of Trade said the ill-effects of drought and heat affecting parts of the corn belt would benefit wheat farmers as well in terms of higher prices for their already harvested grain.

There was one possible ameliorating factor. The National Weather Service said dry areas of the corn belt might get relieving rains in the next few days if a developing weather system comes up to its full potential.

In London, sources said Thursday the Soviets were looking for western credit to finance future purchases of grains to fulfill minimum requirements. While some traders discounted the significance of the report, the mere mention of potential Soviet business nearly always is followed by increases in the demand for the essentials — wheat, corn and soybeans.

TF officials 'upset' by possible airport headaches

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Possible noise and other nuisances from a proposed regional airport two miles north of Twin Falls have upset Twin Falls city and county officials and some citizens.

Protests are planned by the Twin Falls County commissioners, Twin Falls City and persons associated with the Blue Lakes Country Club.

Possible noise from jet traffic is the center of some protest against the airport, which will be located south of Interstate 80 near the Perrine Bridge with an east runway a mile from the Snake River Canyon at its east end and about 1.5 miles from the canyon at its west end, according to the statement.

The statement and engineers involved in the study say noise from the airport would not be a problem.

But some members of the Blue Lakes Country Club and the Twin Falls county commissioners are sending protest letters to the Federal Aviation Administration, Seattle, the government agency in charge of the statement.

Sterling Vaughn, president of the country club, said today that the club is not taking an official stand. Speaking as a private citizen, however, "I think it will be a poor thing."

Vaughn said he does not favor a regional airport anyway, and he feels noise from airplane traffic would be especially hard on the country club, which sits on the canyon floor less than a half mile from the area most affected by the noise.

"The noise is magnified, echoing on the walls of the canyon," he said. "A good many members are expressing objections to noise."

Ann Cover, Twin Falls County commissioner, said the commissioners had also drafted a letter objecting in part to the statement's claims that noise would be "no problem."

"We feel it will be," she said. "The canyon does reverberate." Mrs. Cover said the commissioners had talked to people living along the canyon rim and in the canyon, who say that they get a double dose of noise, thanks to reverberations from the canyon. Blasting for the Perrine Bridge, for instance, was magnified for those residents, she said.

In a letter the federal environmental Protection Agency had also objected to the noise to the Federal Aviation Administration last year.

The letter said that rural areas and an area of urban expansion in Twin Falls "may suffer a severe noise impact since they will be within four miles of the proposed airport."

The statement that these areas will not be affected by the airport activities is "questionable," the letter, dated April 26, 1974, said.

It also asked for a measurement of current noise levels in the area, and said that an increase of less than five decibels would have no impact on a community.

Two EPA noise specialists, Debra Humphrey and Paul Joppa, clarified the letter, estimating possible noise from a four-engine jet taking off or landing at the proposed site.

Atmosphere and land aviation could change the rough estimates, they said. A person near Highway 53 outside the noise contour five-sixteenths mile south of the runway would hear a noise as loud as a kitchen garbage disposal, an engineer helping with the airport's master plan said.

A person five-eighths of a mile south would hear a noise about as intense as a freight train 50 feet away. At 1.25 miles south, the intensity of the jet's noise would be about as noisy as freeway traffic heard 50 feet away.

A person 2.5 miles to the south, within Twin Falls city limits, would hear noise about as intense as a spoken conversation.

Denver crash

Passenger cites crash 'prayer'

DENVER (UPI) — Earl Clayton is no stranger to jet travel. He felt the plane just power Thursday and thought, "My God, so this is how it's going to end."

Clayton, 43, an administrative aide to Rep. William Armstrong, D-Colo., was sitting in the seventh row of the first-class section of a Continental Airlines 727 which had just taken off from Stapleton International Airport.

"Generally after takeoff there is a slight drop and then a surge of power," he said. "When I didn't feel the surge I knew we were going in. The pilot did an absolutely magnificent job of setting us down as gently as he did. It could have been over for all of us."

Thirty-nine of the 131 persons aboard were injured. One passenger was in serious condition, with a fractured spine but did not need to be hospitalized by ambulance and helicopter, suffered less severe injuries.

The Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board were investigating to determine what caused the plane. Flight 436 to Wichita and Tulsa, to go down. Preliminary reports indicated the aircraft, carrying a crew of seven, was buffeted by severe turbulence just after takeoff and forced into a wheel field 300 feet from the end of Stapleton's main north-south runway.

"Construction men working on a new runway just east of the crash site said winds blew the roof off a metal maintenance shed just about the time the plane went down," an NTSB inspector said. "We're still checking, but it appears the plane was caught in a severe downdraft and pushed to the ground."

The aircraft came to rest atop a small knoll in a wheat stubble field. Emergency crews sprayed the plane with foam and there was only a brief fire among the engines.

The tail section of the airliner, containing the three engines, was torn from the fuselage and the cabin compartment jettied at a grotesque angle, wrenched from the main body of the plane by the force of the crash.

"The crew was just great," Clayton said. "Some of them were covered with blood but there was no panic as they helped everyone off the plane. I just can't say enough about their professional attitude."

CONTINENTAL Airlines Boeing 727 jetliner lies in field after crashing Thursday during takeoff from Denver airport. No one was killed in the accident. Officials said 39 persons were injured. (UPI)

Peron wins bout

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — President Isabel Peron, forced by Argentina's labor leaders into several political and economic reverses in the last month, has triumphed in a Congressional showdown.

Mrs. Peron scored a political victory late Thursday night when the lower house of congress approved her hand-picked choice for chairmanship of the Chamber of Deputies.

In another development, labor leaders asked Mrs.

Peron to declare a 90-day state of emergency, freezing prices and subsidizing wages to halting worker layoffs. Argentina's economic crisis has left more than 250,000 workers unemployed in the last two weeks alone.

Mrs. Peron tapped 70-year-old sugar industrialist Nicasio Sanchez Toranzo as Chamber chairman to succeed Raul Lastiri, the son-in-law of ousted government strongman and presidential confidant Jose Lopez Rega.

Lawyer huddle set in Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI)

The American Bar Association, concerned about the image of lawyers in the aftermath of Watergate, starts preliminary activities today for its annual meeting next week.

Among the controversial issues facing the 40-member house of delegates are resolutions dealing with the legalization of prostitution and amnesty for Vietnam era deserters and draft dodgers.

Resolutions approved by the house have no legal effect but carry the prestige of the largest legal organization in the country.

First on the list of events is a speech tonight by former Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. Jaworski is expected to discuss the legal impact of Watergate one year to the day after Richard M. Nixon told the nation on television he would resign the Presidency.

Jaworski's speech and appointment next week by Watergate trial Judge John J. Sirica and Nixon's White House lawyer, James D. St. Clair, emphasize the legal profession's concern about the effect of Watergate on its own ethics and its public image.

Although the profession suffered a public relations setback during Watergate, the ABA is robust. With more than 200,000 members, and 11,000 new lawyers joining the organization each year, the ABA has none of the major financial and membership difficulties faced by the American Medical Association.

Neither the prostitution nor the amnesty resolutions are given much chance of passage, although they will prompt heated debate.

ATT asks rate hike

WASHINGTON (UPI)

The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has asked the Federal Communications Commission to approve rate increases that would bring $7.9 million annually from short distance interstate lines.

A spokesman said Thursday the increase would affect about 19,000 business customers and government agencies that use interstate lines ranging up to 25 miles in length. Long-distance rates are increasing would go into effect Oct. 9.

ATT said the rate increases would cost users from $4.60 monthly for a one mile circuit to $19 monthly on a 25-mile circuit.

ATT said it wanted to bring rates for short leased lines closer to costs. Even with the new rates, the company said, the relationship between cost and revenue would not be satisfactory.

Idaho farmers battle crickets

BOISE (UPI) — Rockland area farmers have won the battle that threatened 50,000 acres of their dryland grain. They successfully halted the "march" of the worst cricket infestation in Idaho in 25 years.

Aerial bombing of the Coolidge cricket, similar to the one that nearly wiped out the Mormon Pioneers in the Salt Lake Valley, left fields littered with the dead insects.

Wilson Kellogg, director of the Idaho Department of Agriculture, said today the farmers finally were able to spray the crickets with chemicals as they marched out of the rugged federal rangeland toward the grain fields.

"We had a good kill," Kellogg said.

Kellogg and Dr. Janet Moore, state entomologist, met with Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Wednesday to report on her factfinding tour of the infested area.

The insects did some damage, but as they moved into the open spray planes bombarded them with the chemical Malathion.

"The kill was so good that in one field of 600 acres only one cricket was found alive," Kellogg said.

He said that the march was halted before the insects could do "less than one-half of one-per cent damage." Still, he added, some damage resulted to about 3,000 acres of grain.

It wasn't until the crickets came out of the hills that the chemical could be used because of the rugged terrain which halted aerial spraying and because of the heavy foliage on the federal rangeland. In order for the chemical to have any effect it must come in direct contact with the cricket.

Two other areas of the state — Arbon Valley across the hills from Rockland and in the Midvale area — also had cricket problems earlier in the year. They were controlled early because of the easy access to spraying the insect.

In the case of Rockland, we had to get them right on the firing line — out of the heavy foliage and rugged country and into the open," Kellogg said.

The agricultural chief said so far most of the crickets have left the Bureau of Land Management rangeland and only one small group was noted marching toward the open ground. He said until they are in the open, it would be a "waste of money" trying to spray.

We should get them on the next shot of spray as they come out into the open," he said.

Kellogg said because of the "good rate of kill" this year it is hoped it will make for a better year for the farmer next year and maybe even for several years to come.

Cost of the battle to the state has been approximately $11,000 while Rockland area farmers have expended in the neighborhood of $15,500.

100 signed for arts festival

GOODING — More than 100 artists have registered to participate in the arts festival marking the opening of the Idaho State Resource Center for the Arts here Sunday.

The Antique Festival Theatre will be performing two plays Sunday and Monday.

Sunday at 8 p.m. the theatre troupe will present "Pipes in a Pipe," in a benefit performance for the Gooding County Historical Society. Tickets are 50 cents with "oldtimers" admitted free in conjunction with the Gooding Oldtimers Days.

Monday, the players present "Tarfulle," by Mollere, at 8 p.m. on the resource center grounds, the former site of the Idaho Public Schools Hospital.

Artists registered to participate in the festival include painters, sculptors, weavers, spinners, jewelry makers, silversmiths, costume designers and others.

The Magic Valley Chamber Orchestra will perform the "Brandsburg Concerto No. 5" by Bach at 7 p.m. Sunday under the direction of Carol Wong, Jerome.

The festival will be open from 10 a.m. until sundown on Sunday.

Kid appreciation day set Aug. 15

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Department Kid Appreciation Day will be Aug. 15 in conjunction with the Downtown Merchants Association.

A free movie for children will start at 10 a.m. at the Orpheum Theatre. The annual event signifies the end of summer activities at the city playgrounds.

There will be a drawing at the end of the movie to give away a bicycle, sponsored by the Downtown Merchants Association. Free pop-sicles will be given to all children attending the movie.

The show is expected to end by 1 p.m.

Headline in error

A headline on a story about the regional airport should have read "Port noise below kitchen disposal," rather than "Port noise equals kitchen disposal."

Typographical errors changed the meaning of two quotes in the story. An east-west runway will accommodate 99 per cent, not 99 per cent, of the winds over the airport.

The word "not" was left out of a statement concerning a possible review of the final environmental impact study of the proposed airport. George Bailey, Seattle, should have been quoted as saying "It will not be a rehearsal."

New national wagon master named

MAYFIELD, Idaho (UPI) — A St. Elmo, Ill., man who has driven mule teams since he was nine years old is the new national wagon master for the Bicentennial wagon train.

"Guess I've always been a mule man and mules," traveled Bill Price at a camp in the sagebrush desert south of Boise. He took over as wagon master Aug. 2 in Boise when Ken Wilcox of Alder Manor, Wash., quit.

"I was working a team of mules when I was nine; my family had 40 acres in Missouri near the Arkansas border. We got a team of horses soon afterwards and there's only been about 10 years of my life without horses."

In an accent revealing his long years close to Arkansas, Price said his love of people and horses is standing him in good stead in his new job.

"I think the wagon master should ride all over and see to the needs and wants of everyone and be friendly so I have been visiting more than ever."

He and his wife, Mary Louise, joined the wagon train at its start in Blaine, Wash., June 8 with two horses. They at first were the "ride" for the ride but by the second day had been put on as an out-ride.

"We have a lovely bunch of people here and we've had a beautiful trip, part of it on the authentic Oregon Trail. The people are all very hardy. In very good spirits and seem to be really pulling together. We're just like one family."

The morale is great, he noted as good natured joshing welled up around the chuck wagon after the long, hot ride through the south Idaho foothills.

"I think as far as we've come, we must love it, so we might as well admit it and have fun."

A young man looked up from his dinner and grinning, said

Price had told him "You're going to see eagles! You're going to see the finest country in the world! All I saw was a squirrel and 15 miles of sagebrush! But I did see an eagle today and lots of jackrabbits."

Price will lead the wagon train into Wyoming Aug. 24 after three and one-half weeks across Idaho on or near the Oregon Trail. The wagons will rest in Fort Laramie for the winter but the Prices will keep going, first to Texas and then Illinois for a few weeks before going to California for a ride on the Santa Fe Trail with the wagons. In March they plan to help escort Florida's wagon toward Pennsylvania.

Mareh will be devoted to business. Price is part owner and sales manager of a plant and farm at St. Elmo.

In April, the couple will return to Wyoming to begin the final part of the journey that will unite all the wagons from the states at Valley Forge on July 4, 1776.

At the end of the bicentennial trails, the Prices plan to turn their attention again to a western trail and join the Klackaprus County Sheriff's posse for a ride from Oregon City to Coos Bay, Ore.

Price had told him "You're going to see eagles! You're going to see the finest country in the world! All I saw was a squirrel and 15 miles of sagebrush! But I did see an eagle today and lots of jackrabbits."

Support for Rockefeller

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's campaign chairman, choosing his words cautiously, said today Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has "enormous support" as well as opposition within the Republican party.

Howard H. Callaway, referred to his previous comments that pictured Rockefeller as a liability to Ford among some conservative GOP elements as a "tempest in a teapot."

Rockefeller also has used the same words to describe the controversy.

Callaway told a breakfast meeting of reporters that he is trying to rally maximum support for the President from all Republicans, including those who don't like Rockefeller.

Ford said in a television interview Thursday night he saw no reason to change the GOP lineup for 1976.

Rockefeller has enormous support and also opposition, Callaway said, but declined to assess the vice president's popularity in the GOP.

However, Republicans feel about Rockefeller, he said, "I want them all for President Ford."

Callaway also declined to get into the kind of exchange that led last week to a spate of stories about Rockefeller as the main problem for the Ford campaign in the South and other areas where conservatives appear interested in a possible challenge by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

He told reporters today he saw no change, but would not go into any detail about opposition to Rockefeller or its effect on the Ford campaign.

Callaway said his past discussions with reporters on Rockefeller always had been in reply to questions about what "Reagan delegates" were saying about the former New York governor and that his own relations with the vice president were perfectly cordial.

Callaway also said "no one in authority" had told him to stop talking about Rockefeller but that a former House colleague he would not identify had "berated" him for his previous statements.

Firm to join in workshops

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company officials accepted an invitation Thursday to participate in a proposed series of workshops aimed at broadening citizen participation in mapping Idaho's future energy policies.

The Idaho Conservation League invited the company to join in the workshops.

Logan Lanham, the utility's vice president for public affairs, said the company plans to take part in the workshops tentatively scheduled for October and November in eight Idaho cities and areas.

"Public understanding of the facts is vital if intelligent decisions are to be made regarding the energy future," Lanham said.

The workshops provide for an exchange of complete, factual and relevant information about future energy supplies and alternatives, they can be an invaluable aid in achieving public awareness about energy problems."

He said several juveniles were milling in the area earlier in the day but the theft was not noticed until someone tried to use the machine at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

The office said the latch apparently had been triggered to release the bottles in the machine.

Murtaugh water ski club meets

MURTAUGH — The Murtaugh-Lake Water Ski Association met Wednesday for the monthly meeting, with discussion centering on the project to paint the Kimberly Senior Citizens Center.

A ski show at Murtaugh-Lake for the senior citizens is set for Aug. 16. A bus will pick the seniors up at 10:30 a.m. at the Kimberly center.

The annual overnight party will be held Aug. 16 at Murtaugh Lake, with a potluck dinner scheduled for that evening.

The novice ski tournament is planned for Aug. 23 and 24 in Blackfoot.

All members are asked to be at Murtaugh Lake this weekend for practice.

Fair plans discussed

TWIN FALLS — The 6-to-14-H Club met Wednesday at the home of Denise and Lisa Phillips.

Members discussed decorations for the fair. Jeff Giest gave a demonstration on spinning wool. Carla Giest gave a demonstration on goats. The club showed lambs under the direction of leaders John Weller and Bud Fuller.

Refreshments were served by Dusty Sharp. Reporters was Angela Denton.

The next meeting will be held Aug. 13 at the home of Scott and Nancy Nass.

Toro builds the Whirlwind to last

There are no fancy frills or gimmicks. Nothing complicated to break down. In fact, the basic design has remained unchanged for 12 years.

It's a fine cutting mower that gets the job done, time after time. At Toro, we don't change a good thing when it works.

Take a close look at the Whirlwind. You'll see that every feature is there for a purpose, not just for show.

For example: the Wind-Tunnel housing that vacuums grass upright for a clean, close cut; an anti-slip disc which helps the blade over rough spots without tearing up grass; and an angled cutting blade that slices grass with one clean cut to help prevent the tips from turning brown.

Looking both ways after Ford's first year

© N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — At the end of his first year in the White House, and the beginning of his campaign for four more years beyond 1976, President Ford must know that, even among the vast majority of his fellow-countrymen who wish him well, there is a strain of doubt.
The doubt is not primarily about this last year, though you can get an argument about his policies in both parties. His personal conduct has been almost faultless. He has been open, available, candid and truthful, even at times when it exposed his own misjudgments, and contradictions.
After Nixon, for the transition, this was probably more important than anything else. He removed the atmosphere of conspiracy. He saw his political opponents, argued out the issues with Mike Mansfield and his former colleagues in the House of Representatives, and voted their bills when he thought they were wrong.

Even now, his old buddies on the Hill are furious about what they regard as his "government by veto," but when they are angry, he invites them down to the White House to talk it over, and when they think he is wrong, they at least believe he is honest. This is a big change in the last year, and a triumph of Ford's character and personality.
All this has come out in the newspaper and television reviews of his first year in the White House. The reporters and commentators who watch the calendar and have to write about these political anniversaries have all concentrated on the point that Ford is "a decent human being." This tells us something about the sad state of our politics — decency, fairness and openness are now news, not things to be taken for granted, but maybe enough to elect a man in his sixties for another four years.
This is the big change in the President in the last year. He had a clear picture of himself not so long ago as an appointed vice president and an accidental and astonished President. He saw himself then as a temporary and interim President in his sixties who would go home to Grand Rapids after an unexpected triumph and look after his ailing wife.

But in this last year, surrounded by the majesty of the White House, and reassured by the press and his ceremonial duties at home and abroad, he has decided to go for another term. This is where the element of doubt comes in.
It is easy to be grateful for his modesty and grace in the transition from Nixon. He has been an almost perfect interim President, but when he takes popular acclaim for the transition, as support for another four years into the radical problems of the 1980's, he raises a different question.
He is a deeply conservative and national man in an increasingly radical and interdependent world. The nation and the world are suffering from disruption and shock. He is a happy and appreciative man, with a kind of thumby practical wisdom, but he does not really grapple with the perplexing problems of the insurgent hum of the age.

In this sense, he is honest about his past, as leader of an opposition minority for many years. He senses the stress and anxiety of the young, and, occasionally, resents the smarties and pushers and extravagantly greedy lobbyists on the Hill. But in the crunch he comes down on the side of things as they were, and worries more about the threat of Teggan than the threat of the coming revolution of the hungry two-thirds of the world.
There is something amiable, and even good about all this. If you look merely at the last year, when the nation needed a respite from the tensions of Vietnam and Watergate, but in looking at the President at the end of his first year, it is important to distinguish between the past and the future.
He has glimpses of the elusive future, but he has an officious conscience about the Republican past, and the threat of conservative opposition at the Republican nominating convention next year. He can go to Helsinki and give amnesty to the Russians for their aggressions in Eastern Europe, but not to his own fellow countrymen who opposed Vietnam. It is hard to discern any guiding purpose in his thought, any visible center in his philosophy for the future, or any directing brain.
In short, he has kindled the poison in our political system in the last year, which is an achievement, but in being grateful for that we should not forget the question he has now put to the people, namely that we should reward him by electing him to lead us through the radical problems into the eighties.
These are problems for the young men of the rising generation, and the tragedy of American politics is that we seem to be stuck in both parties with men in their sixties.
For the last year of Gerald Ford, we should be grateful, but for the four years after 1976, since an election is not a judgment on the past but a bet on the future, maybe we should be careful.
It is easy to celebrate his happy first birthday in the White House, but not necessarily to wish him many happy returns.

Union wage fixers

Wall Street Journal
We see where the AFL-CIO is promoting national health insurance with the argument that it will hold down the cost of medical care.
Unless you understand what the union's social welfare experts are actually driving at, the idea is preposterous. You must reduce the cost of a limited resource by pumping up demand for it with a federally financed program.
The last time around on federal insurance, Medicare and Medicaid in 1966, brought a sharp rise in medical costs, which jumped 16.6 points on the Consumer Price index between 1963 and 1968, double the rate for all goods and services. In the absence of price controls, the kind of expansion of medical insurance the AFL-CIO has in mind would no doubt produce a similar result.
Which leads up to what the AFL-CIO seems to be really driving at, that national health insurance will give the government the "leverage" to hold down medical costs. In other words, it will enable the feds to put the screws to prices in the health industry, and, by extension, to the take home pay of doctors.

Now we don't know whether doctors are overpaid or underpaid, any more than we know whether plumbers are overpaid or underpaid. Some people resent the affluence of doctors, we're told. But then some people resent the affluence of plumbers. Those, however, are subjective questions not easily dealt with through medical policy.

But the AFL-CIO should consider that doctors and plumbers aren't all that much different in economic terms. Both have strong national organizations representing their interests. Both have had some measure of self-regulation over entry into the professions, which, so their critics claim, has helped up the price of their services.

So if the AFL-CIO wants the feds to put the screws to the take-home-pay-of-doctors, we see no reason why, if that, make a distinction between doctors and plumbers. Or, for that matter, carpenters, or toolmakers, or riggers. Why not put the screws to everyone who has a strong labor union that tends to restrict the supply of its services?

Now no doubt the AFL-CIO would find such an idea abhorrent. But if this is what it really means when it talks about federal leverage to hold down medical costs this is where logic inevitably leads. Before such logic carries it too far, the AFL-CIO might do well to reconsider how much additional federal intervention in the health industry is really necessary or desirable.

A NATURAL GAS SHORTAGE? HOW COULD YOU DREAM OF SUCH A THING..?

Controlling inflation

Christian Science Monitor
Are steel price increases justified? Especially at a time when another inflationary push is seen as a danger to America's economic recovery?

The announcement by Armco Steel Corporation that it will jump its prices of flat-rolled and sheet metal a hefty 9 percent is a disturbing development. If the price increase sticks, it means American consumers will have to pay proportionately more for automobiles, refrigerators, and other manufactured products in which steel is used. Even before the announced increase Detroit carmakers were forecasting higher prices for their products.

There is no question that the steel companies must turn a good profit. They have enough capital to expand production as the economy gets rolling again. But the industry as a whole has weathered the recession well, although production fell off early this year.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, the administration's watchdog group, is now trying to "jawbone" the other steel companies into exercising restraint. It indicates there are no changes in market conditions that justify steel increases since the demand for cold-rolled steel sheet is now weak and there is surplus production capacity.

It is therefore to be hoped that the other steel producers refrain from similar increases. In such case the Armco raise will not hold. Otherwise, it will be hard convincing a skeptical American public that the business is not taking advantage of it at the very time when there is the first glimmer of hope for an economic upturn.

Since consumer confidence is perhaps the most important ingredient needed to get things moving again, the steel industry would best serve its long-term interest by trying to keep the price level as steady as possible.

When Albert Rees, former head of the President's wage-price council, went before Congress recently he in fact warned that rising prices of industrial goods was now the biggest danger.
Earlier it was thought the inflation rate would be down to 6 percent so this year but the estimate now is it may be around 7 or 8 percent. Two factors account for this. One is the surprising strength of food prices, partly due to the large sales of grain to the Soviet Union.

The other factor is oil. Assuming the President vetoes Congress's extension of the oil price control act, prices on domestically produced "old" oil are expected to rise sharply after Aug. 31, boosting the cost of gasoline and other fuel products.

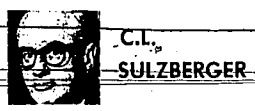

In the face of these and other inflationary shadows, it would be wiser for the steel companies not to follow Armco's lead and to draw back from similarly high price boosts. A responsible public stance now will be to the industry's profit later.

STOCKHOLM — The pleasant Finnish custom of a hot sauna followed by a freezing dip serves as a healthy stimulus.
Dousing the head in ice water after the radiant smiles of Helsinki's European security summit is an exercise much to be commended.
It required many years for Soviet diplomacy to bring about the enterprise which achieved for Moscow consensus ratification of its sphere of influence in Eastern Europe and its borders elsewhere, principally with China American officials, who like to think they are Yankee traders, claim Brezhnev had to pay heavily for this privilege in months of advance negotiations by making a new Berlin deal (which retains the partition wall) and pledging facilitated visas for journalists and geographically divided families.

In 1954, when the Kremlin first began to work for the arrangements that were signaled in Helsinki, the U.S.A. was still the only superpower with a consequently respected voice. This position was lost by the fact of the strategic vulnerability. Because the U.S.S.R. had no intercontinental weapons system, Washington enjoyed the luxury of speaking loud while carrying a big stick. That brief moment vanished with the missile that threw up Sputnik in 1957.
It is no fault of later administrations that our bargaining power has dwindled since.
For 21 years the Kremlin pursued a series of related policy objectives: A demilitarized zone in Europe; suppression of foreign bases; withdrawal of troops to their homelands; atomic nonproliferation; reduction of forces in both halves of Germany; European arms limitation and dissolution of military coalitions. In the wake of the Helsinki euphoria it may be anticipated that one-by-one these goals will be revived.

Meanwhile, various nations of the West, led by the United States, are rivaling each other in attempts to invest billions in the U.S.S.R. to gain access to its markets and resources and to make available their own techniques and advanced technology in exchange.
Crumbling NATO has no cogent new strategy. Its conventional strength is no match for Russia's. Its European members believe U.S. strategic nuclear missiles would only be used against Russia if American territory or installations were hit first and, despite the Helsinki congress, the superpowers deal with each other independently of their allies, who receive courteous ex post facto reports.

Last week's European summit bent a principle Henry Kissinger enunciated Dec. 27, 1974 that the United States would not permit "selective détente." As far as Portugal goes, that is just what has been produced.
In retrospect, the United States has manufactured much of its own weakness by actions in the realm of foreign policy on the part of both the executive and legislative branches. To find back-door access to Moscow and compose bilateral accords which the Kremlin was actively seeking, we tilted toward Pakistan to get to Peking, then moved from there to the Soviet Union supermarket.
Favoring Pakistan sacrificed what shreds of influence we had left in India. Courting China (the abrupt way we did offend Japan. Now the Chinese have cooled off and with Russia we've got what the Russians were themselves angling for. Congressional pressures helped us lose prestige in Southeast Asia and may produce a dangerous mirage of peace in the Middle East.
From our viewpoint, the Mediterranean is a mess. What began as negligence by the executive on the Greece-Turkey-Cyprus issue has been compounded by gross legislative interference. Congress is getting a busybody complex. And not the U.S.A., which foreigners will consider one government, not two or three — is reviled in Athens, Ankara and Nicosia all at once.

The executive in Washington has been so pilloried, show all with respect to the CIA, that nobody seems prepared to help our friends in Portugal (who once both liked us and respected us) or even to formulate a policy that would save that little land from a brutal take-over given under the table encouragement by Moscow.

In his "The Heritage of Henry Adams," Brooks Adams wrote: "Democracy is an infinite mass of conflicting minds and of conflicting interests, which by the persistent action of such a solvent as the modern competitive industrial system becomes resolved into what is, in substance, a vapor, which loses in collective energy in proportion to the perfection of its expansion."
Since that book, published during the 1919 treaty negotiations, democracy has clearly been periled because, judging by the "vapor" issuing from Helsinki's sauna, its collective intellectual energy has evaporated.

Berry's World

"I say, let's not let those Turks show us around — send 'em aid and more arms — show 'em who's boss!"

That Great Vote Robbery

WASHINGTON — At least the Senate's role was merely devious, sly and conscienceless — not illegal.
But the House's action in passing the Senate's bill to give cost-of-living pay raises to Congress, the supreme court, and other federal judges, the vice president, cabinet members and various top-level federal executives will live in infamy as The Great Vote Robbery.

Under the legislation, those covered will get the same percentage increase, each and every October, as the President recommends, under the federal pay "comparability" statutes, for lower-grade civil servants. If the increase this year is 8 percent the added cost of the top-level raises alone will be $19.7 million. At 5 percent it would be about $4 million.
Whatever the cost to the taxpayer, the House stole the money.

To recapitulate: Just before Congress was to recess for the month of August, an amendment providing for the pay raises was tacked on to a bill requiring the Postal Service to comply with Occupational Safety and Health Act. The boys figured that was the only way such a piece of skullduggery could be accomplished. They were right.

The Senate swiftly passed the measure, 58-29, and it went to the House. Ordinarily, the bill would go to a House-Senate conference, but the House Rules Committee immediately approved a resolution permitting the House to accept the bill without a conference. Time was of the knavish essence.

Forthwith, the bill was put to a vote in the House. As the 15-minute roll call ended, the electronic tally board showed the pay raise had lost by one vote, 213 to 214.

But a gaggle of alleged lawmakers screamed that the voting machine had malfunctioned. A delighted Speaker Carl Albert, noted mostly for his ability to count to 10, kept the voting machinery open as vote-switching ensued. When the board showed 214 votes for and 213 against, Albert immediately gavelled it through, lest some legislator discover his conscience and mess things up. Several protesting voices were drowned out in the gleeful hubbub.

There's enough blame to go around for this sneaky, back-door dirty work by the so-called "people's" Congress. But the guerrilla leaders were Sens. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., and Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, Chairman and Senior Republican on the Senate's Post Office and Civil Service Committee. In the House, they were aided and abetted by Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., Republican Conference Chairman who said the raises were needed to halt the loss of some of the government's most valuable employees.
Credit is due, too, notably to House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., Sens. James B. Allen, D-Ala., Bill Brock, R-Tenn., and Robert A. Taft Jr., R-Ohio.

Rhodes opposed the bill on the grounds that Congress is largely responsible for the high cost of living by massive federal spending.
Brock spoke up for "the people of Tennessee," who will pay more taxes to boost the salaries of officials earning from $28,000 a year to $36,000 a year for a supreme court justice. Taft proposed a one-time only boost for Congress, and Allen sought to eliminate the Congressional pay raise. Both were told to get lost.

Meanwhile, one must not slight that champion of frugality — for other people. President Gerald Ford wrote a letter to Congress strongly endorsing the thievery.
From here, Mr. President, sir, don't call me when you're looking for a private citizen to "make sacrifices" for his country. I'll be out moonlighting as a pickpocket to get-up-the mortgage money.

Rail service views clash

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Advisory Committee on Amtrak, responding to a letter from the national corporation saying the trains cannot be reinstated in Idaho, said the Gem State already is subsidizing the service without getting its use.

associated capital costs.

"Several states have used this procedure most ambitiously to increase service to their residents," Pike said. Dwight Jensen, chairman of the Idaho advisory committee, said that group feels the main south Idaho route should be experimental rather than having the state assume two-thirds of the operating losses because Idahoans already are subsidizing Amtrak. He said any route that is feasible for Idaho must serve two to 10 other states and negotiating the shares of the subsidy would be extremely difficult.

Bruce Pike, director of government affairs for Amtrak, said the present financial and equipment limitations are preventing Amtrak from instituting new routes and services on its own initiative.

He said it is his position that an orderly expansion of the Amtrak route system should occur in accordance with the provisions of the Rail Passenger Service Act that would have the state agree to assume two-thirds of the operating losses and

Tel Aviv split on Syrian peace efforts

By DAN KURZMAN
© Washington Star

JERUSALEM — The Israeli government is sharply divided over whether to negotiate an interim peace agreement with Syria if present peace talks with Egypt reach an accord. This disagreement could delay or prevent the conclusion of a partial settlement with Egypt, since the Egyptians insist that they cannot make a "deal" unless Israel commits itself to negotiate with Syria immediately afterwards.

The latest Egyptian peace proposals now are under study here. Although indications are that Israel favors rejection, officials here feel that Egypt has softened its demands sufficiently since its last proposals to keep the road to a settlement open.

But the big question here is whether even eventual agreement on the basic terms will be fruitful if Israel refuses to negotiate next a partial accord with Syria. Premier Yitzhak Rabin, officials close to him say, is firmly opposed to such negotiations, while defense Minister Shimon Peres favors them.

Since these two men are the most powerful in the Israeli Cabinet, their opposing views could severely strain government unity at a time each man is considered vital in the face of American pressure to teach an agreement with Egypt. Rabin feels that interim talks with Syria would be pointless, since Israel cannot afford to give back any more Golan territory before negotiations for a final, overall Middle East peace.

And even then, Israel appears willing to agree to return only a small amount of land in view of the strategic importance of the area, which exists a giant shadow over many Israeli settlements.

The premier, arguing that Israel can trust Syria far less than Egypt, is persuaded that the Syrians want not only their land back, but the destruction of Israel. Why, therefore, give them more of a springboard to achieve that end?

Rabin appears to feel that one of the big advantages of an accord with Egypt would be precisely the commitment it must undertake not to attack Israel — even if Syria or other Arab countries do.

Peres, on the other hand, maintains that it is unrealistic and self-defeating to think that any peace agreement with Egypt can work unless Israel negotiates with Syria as well — indeed, Egypt agrees to conclude a deal at all without the Syrian connection.

Syria, Peres is convinced, would try to sabotage the accord with Egypt from the first day it went into effect. And Syria probably would have the support of Jordan, with which it is forming a military alliance.

Nor would it be politically possible, in Peres's view, for Egypt to remain out of any war between Syria and Israel, whatever the agreement might specify.

Some Arab states, and the Palestine Liberation Organization already are exerting great pressure on Egypt to pull out of the present talks, and even spoke of Egyptian "treachery" when President Anwar El-Sadat did not push for a resolution calling for Israel's expulsion from the United Nations at the recent meeting of the Organization of African Unity in Kampala, Uganda.

Peres reasons that Sadat could not resist the immeasurably greater pressure he would feel to join in any new war.

The danger of a Syrian attempt every square inch of occupied territory clearly for concrete political concessions does not seem greatly concerned about what Washington would expect Israel to give up. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is known to have promised Israel during the negotiations last year for a separation-of-forces agreement with Syria that the United States would support Israel's retention of that part of the Golan Heights directly overlooking Israel.

It is ironic that Peres, reputed to be the leading hawk in the Israeli cabinet, should favor talks with Syria, while Rabin, who usually is dovish, should oppose them.

Peres in the past usually was won enough cabinet support for his views to prod Rabin into a more rigid position than the premier otherwise would take. But if Peres is a hawk in the strategic sense, determined to lack will, it is generally believed here, by the Israeli Cabinet, when the U.N. peacekeeping mandate in the Golan Heights will be up for renewal.

Unless an accord with Egypt is reached and subsequent negotiations with Syria are initiated by then, it is felt Syria might refuse a new extension, triggering a war.

But if war must come, Peres apparently believes it should come when Israel is at its maximum strength. And that means after the United States has furnished Israel with all the arms it needs.

Therefore, Israel, by talking with Syria, may delay a war under this view, while obtaining new military aid from the United States that is claimed now is being partially withheld until Washington decides that Tel Aviv is being flexible enough in the negotiations with Egypt.

It is not clear here whether the United States would exert

Try tabloid feature unit

Editor: Times-News:
I have an idea that could make the Times-News a much more profitable business with much less work on the part of the staff and management.

I suggest that you market a tabloid consisting of the comic strips and crossword puzzle, Dear Abby, the movie listings and the classified ads.

I am not certain just exactly the amount of interest there would be in such a publication, but I know I would cheerfully pay $1.50 in Federal Reserve notes (no dollars) for such a publication, per month.

Halving the subscription cost and cutting the costs of newsprint, setup and all the associated overhead that goes with all that other stuff from the Associated Press and United Press International would seem to be a most worthwhile move. I would think there would be a saving of 80 per cent or better of these costs by eliminating the news.

This in no way is intended to be a bad reflection on the news coverage of the Times-News —

I consider that to be of good quality. The things that are worse than worthless are the "news releases" from the slanted national news service — the AP and UPI.

If my idea is used, I would appreciate receiving a 2 per cent royalty, with that kind of income in pseudo dollars (Federal Reserve notes) I could live like a king.

Hope soars for Teamsters Hoffa

DETROIT (UPI)—Hoffa's sure today in the family compound of missing Teamsters Union powderkeg James R. Hoffa that the FBI would "hit the jackpot" and "the little fellow" would soon be home.

There was no official confirmation from federal authorities. But reporters outside the Hoffa summer cottage 40 miles from Detroit sensed the mood Thursday, and Hoffa's son, James P. Hoffa, 31, affirmed the rumors of renewed hope Thursday night when he came to the cyclone fence surrounding the Hoffa layout.

"Ready," he asked, then announced, "We are convinced we will hit the jackpot."

"We are hoping to find information that will lead to his coming back home."

Young Hoffa's sister, Barbara Crancer of St. Louis, Mo., was questioned by United Press International about her brother's statement and was in enthusiastic agreement.

"Do you now believe your father is out there alive and will be back with you soon?" she was asked.

"Right," she answered.

If Hoffa's return is in the offing, it would set up a titanic battle for control of the nation's most powerful union.

Hoffa had vowed he would go after regaining control of the 2.2-million Teamsters next year, unseating his former pal, President Frank F. Fitzsimmons.

To do that, he would have to hurdle a stipulation put on the continuation of his prison sentence in 1971 that he could not participate in union leadership until 1980.

Hoffa was reported confident he could do that—that the decision in his favor was already sitting in the hands of U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The newspaper has already told bank and life insurance support for the fray and building up a war chest. Reports about where Hoffa was getting his money surfaced Thursday in a week-old report that he had recently obtained $1 million from the $1.34 billion Central States Teamster pension fund.

That report was denied all the way from young Hoffa to the FBI in Washington as well as by sources close to the investigation in Detroit and the capital city of Lansing.

Young Hoffa, a Detroit labor attorney, told reporters, "I know it didn't happen. I know my father's affairs and it could not happen."

Teamsters sources agree they said Hoffa had taken his bite out of the pension fund in a lump sum of $1.7 million in 1971 and was unlikely to get more from it.

Ford urges 'flexibility' for Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ford has delivered a stern message to Israel: Adopt greater flexibility in negotiations with Egypt or see an increased potential for war and confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

He made his comments in a wide-ranging interview with Martin Agronsky and Paul Duke on the Public Broadcast System Thursday night.

"If there isn't movement in the Middle East right now—the potential for war is increased significantly. And a war in the Middle East has broader potential ramifications than any time in the past and we have had four wars in the Middle East since 1948."

A fifth one not only means that Israel will be fighting the Arab world but the potential for confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union is a possibility."

Speaking of Israel and Egypt, Ford said: "Both of those countries have to understand that flexibility at this crucial time is important for the peace of that area of the world and possibly for the world. Israel has to be more flexible, and I think Egypt has to respond."

He said the Soviets "have acted in a very responsible way during my time in the Middle East. I think they understand the potential consequences of no progress for continued peace and understanding in the Middle East."

He said prospects for achieving a long sought interim peace settlement between Israel and Egypt "are better today than they were yesterday, and they are a lot better today than they were last March when the negotiations unfortunately broke off."

Cabinet seated for Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (UPI)—President Francisco de Costa Gomes swore in a new left-wing, "transitional" cabinet today and appointed to Portugal's soldiers and civilians to halt their violent opposition to the pro-Communist policies of the ruling three-man junta.

Gen Vasco Gonçalves, the main target of the dissent, retained his position as prime minister. Gonçalves, who has close ties with the Communist party, called his opponents "neo-fascists" and reactionaries and vowed to repress their activities.

A wave of opposition against the three generals has swept northern Portugal and it appeared Thursday that there might be a military revolt against the government. Army troops and police "sawd" back during nothing as angry mobs burned Communist party headquarters in several towns and the government sent in proletarian forces.

The president reassured the public that the three ruling generals still wanted to create a "Portuguese Socialism" in the country and urged the entire country to remain calm and not participate in violence.

The prime minister rushed his cabinet into existence after the army commanders of the central and southern military districts joined other moderate officers in opposition to Portugal being turned into a Soviet-style state. Army officers in the northern district signed a similar petition

GOV. MILTON SHAPP questioned

Jailer portrayed as lecher

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—Joan Little's attorneys have portrayed jailer Clarence Alligood as a 62-year-old lecher in dogged pursuit of female prisoners.

Attorney Marvin Miller said the defense would turn to private criminologists today for testimony on evidence the prosecution entered in its attempt to prove Miss Little killed Alligood in an escape plot.

Miss Little, a 21-year-old black woman, claims the white jailer tried to rape her. To convince the jury of the probabilities, the defense Thursday presented two former inmates of the Beaufort County Jail.

"The point has been made," Miller told reporters following the testimony of the three black women. "I can't see believing it."

Annie Marie Gardner said Alligood tried to fondle her breasts while she scrubbed the floor. Rosa Roberson said he pestered her about sex so much she tried to kill herself.

Anti-allergy discovery announced

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A University of California scientist has announced a discovery that may free an estimated 35 million American allergy sufferers of sniffing and sneezing and crying.

It will probably be six or seven years before an anti-allergy pill is available to the general public, but the basis for such a medicine has been established, Dr. Robert N. Hershberger, professor of immunology at UC San Diego medical school, told a news conference Thursday.

Drug companies are already "pounding on the door" of the university, which has patented the discovery, he said. "The practical problems are immense but the confirmation of this theory makes it a risk worth taking," he said.

Pennsylvania governor questioned on campaign

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Two newspapers reported today Gov. Milton J. Shapp, a likely contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, would be called before a federal grand jury here to explain his handling of $20,000 in campaign contributions.

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and the Philadelphia Inquirer said in their morning editions Shapp would be asked to respond to testimony it heard Tuesday from Michael Baker Jr., whose engineering firm in Beaver, Pa., firm holds about $1 million in state contracts.

Edward Mitchell, Shapp's press secretary, said he knew of no subpoena or request for Shapp to testify before the grand jury probing possible corrupt state contracting practices. Mitchell said he believed Shapp would be willing to testify.

"It doesn't seem that the governor would resist a subpoena or a request for him to testify before the grand jury," Mitchell said. "That's just not human."

Neither the Post-Gazette nor the Inquirer named sources for their information.

After Baker testified under a grant of immunity, he told reporters he gave Shapp two separate $10,000 cash donations at private meetings in Beaver County and Pittsburgh hotels.

Shapp then issued a statement through Mitchell saying Baker had given him envelopes "which I assumed to be contributions to my campaign, and ... I turned them over to people working in the campaign committee."

The governor said, "I assumed these contributions were formally reported along with any others received."

Shapp's personal lawyer, Alex Slatinsky, was reported to be searching campaign files for information about the Baker donation.

The Post-Gazette reported a special investigator could find no record of the Baker contributions in data supplied by Shapp.

Shapp then issued a statement through Mitchell saying Baker had given him envelopes "which I assumed to be contributions to my campaign, and ... I turned them over to people working in the campaign committee."

The governor said, "I assumed these contributions were formally reported along with any others received."

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: George and I have been married for 32 years, and with so many of his friends dropping dead of heart attacks and my friends dying of cancer, we started talking about what we would do if the other one were to die. I told George that if he were to die, I'd never marry again, and he said I obviously didn't have a very high opinion of our marriage.

Then George told me that if I were to die, he would definitely marry again, which proved that he thought more of our marriage than I did.

I asked him if he had anybody in mind, and he named a woman whose husband is still living. I asked him what about her husband, and he said, "Well, if YOU can die, HE can die, too, so I just assume you were both dead."

One word led to another, and now we aren't speaking. Abby, is it true that people who think highly of their marriage will marry again if a spouse dies, and those who don't, will not?

If that's true, I'll apologize.

GLADYS

DEAR GLADYS: Apologize.

Happy spouses often remarry

DEAR ABBY: To begin with, from August through December of last year, I had a running battle with the credit department of a large, well-known, high-class New York-based department store. They claimed I owed them $100.

After much correspondence, they finally admitted that due to a computer error, instead of MY owing them $100, THEY owed me 10¢!

For the last six months, they have been sending me a monthly notice that I have a credit of 10¢.

Abby, so far, it has cost them $10 in postage to call my attention to a 10¢ credit. Don't you agree that this is absurd?

It's a wonder the state of New York is broke. Those know-it-all outsiders think they are so smart that nobody can tell them a thing.

Please print your comments on this ridiculous situation, and I will gladly spend a dime to mail it to them.

HADITINIA

DEAR ABBY: A woman complained that her husband deserted her and their children, and when she tried to locate him through the Social Security office, they told her he was alive, but they refused to disclose his whereabouts. (You said, "Even bums have rights.")

No more! Beginning July 1st, a new law has gone into effect that permits wives to have access to federal data (I.R.S., Social Security, Civil Service, Defense Dept., etc.) to locate deserting ex-spouses who have failed to pay alimony and/or child support.

Designed primarily to keep mothers off welfare, the law can be used to locate even middle-class or upper-class non-supporters.

It would be helpful if you published the following address of the Parent Locator Service because so few attorneys, and even fewer mothers whose husbands have deserted them, know of its existence:

James S. Dwight, Jr., Administrator
Social and Rehabilitation Service
Room 5004, M.F.E. Switzer-Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20201

Sincerely,
S.M.S.: Panama Attorney

DEAR MR. S.: Thank you for the extremely helpful information. Thousands of deserted wives will bless you tonight. And an equal number of runaway spouses who have been successfully hiding out will curse you.

Happy Go Lucky 4-H club plans event

TWIN FALLS — The Happy Go Lucky 4-H Club met Wednesday at the home of Christine Britt, leader.

Final plans were made for the mother's tea and style show Aug. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Debbie Britze.

Miss Britt assisted girls working on cooking record books. Mrs. Fred Britt, assistant leader, led a discussion on the importance of good grooming.

Demonstrations were given by Shelly Parr on sewing a straight seam; Debbie Britze on how to match plaids; Robyn Reynolds on good sewing habits, and Angela Groeger on how to clean finish a seam.

The last regular meeting will be Wednesday at the Britt home.

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Stamp Club will meet Monday at 2 p.m. at the Idaho Power Auditorium.

PILER — Mr. and Mrs. Roger Vincent will observe their 25th wedding anniversary with an open house Sunday hosted by their children. Friends and relatives are invited to call from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Vincent home. The couple requests no gifts.

TWIN FALLS — The Addison Avenue Club annual picnic will be held Sunday at 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McGuire.

Former TF miss weds in Grangeville

TWIN FALLS — Patricia Kay Altman and Donald L. Coffman were married July 19 at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Grangeville, with Rev. Earl H. Hering officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Altman, Grangeville, former Twin Falls residents. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Robert T. Coffman, Grangeville.

Nancy Altman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Bonnie and Marilyn Altman and Mrs. Bruce Meyer, all sisters of the bride.

Lisa Meyer, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Ken Altman, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

Terry Gorton was best man. Ushers were Rick and Chris Coffman, brothers of the bridegroom, and Terry Vandervall, Gary Altman, brother of the bride, and Bruce Meyer, brother-in-law of the bride, were candlelighters.

A reception was held following the ceremony. The couple resides in Siles, Idaho, where the bridegroom teaches fifth grade at the Kookkia Elementary School. The bride is a former Twin Falls teacher, having taught first and third grades at Bickel school.

Both are graduates of Grangeville High School and of Lewis and Clark State College with degrees in education.

KRUINGEN, The Netherlands (UPI) — Postman Marco Van Tuijl, 20, fainted in the sweltering heat in the Roman Catholic Church just as he was expected to say he wanted Mia Bauer, 17, as his wife.

The groom was unconscious for 45 minutes until a doctor was able to revive him. The religious service Tuesday continued without him and the official 34-day wedding was postponed until the end.

Vienna coup! — and then run-off his clubs.

South's last two cards were the queen of diamonds and the eight of hearts. North held king and a small heart and East couldn't guard hearts and hang on to the king of diamonds.

Note that South knew where the king of diamonds was located. East needed it for his opening heart bid. Also note that if declarer did not cash dummy's ace of diamonds before running clubs, the squeeze would not have worked.

Ask the Jacobys

An old timer from Florida wants to know how Hal Sims and Ely Culbertson, the first great contract players, would stack up against the modern experts.

The answer is that bidding and playing as they did 45 years ago they would be outclassed, but if they were around today and in the prime they would be right at the top as they were then.

Contract is only 50 years old and the game is improving all the time.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Sometimes the defenders set up a squeeze for declarer by cashing their tricks right off the bat. Thus, West was mighty proud of his spade opening, when he cashed four spades as a starter. He was less proud when South ran off the last nine by squeezing East in the red suits.

It wasn't a difficult squeeze. All South had to do to make sure of his contract was to win trick five with his ace of hearts, cash dummy's ace of diamonds (The class set

on Sept. 16

TWIN FALLS — Interested couples expecting their babies in late October, November or early December should pre-register now for the Lamaze prepared childbirth course at the YWCA.

The course will run for seven weeks, beginning at 8 p.m. Sept. 16, and will cover topics such as nutrition, labor and delivery, neuromuscular control, nonconforming labor and deliveries, the hospital stay, the newborn and feeding the baby.

The Lamaze method of concentrated breathing techniques enables the couple to participate in the childbirth experience by lessening the discomfort of labor contractions.

The fee for the course is $25 plus a $5 text fee which may be refunded at the end of the course if the text is returned.

For registration or further information, contact Joan McFarlane at 424-4742 or the YWCA at 733-1381.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened mixed Friday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 21-point gain, Thursday, was 1,415.55, shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 161 to 112, among the 430 issues crossing the tape.

Just as the market opened, New York's freestanding First National City Bank raised its prime rate to 7 1/2 percent from 7 1/4 percent.

Investors were disappointed with the move in light of the fact the Federal Reserve Board late Thursday reported loan demands at New York's leading banks declined by $32 million during the latest reporting week.

The Fed also reported the nation's money supply fell $1.5 billion in the latest reporting week. It said for the four weeks ended July 31, the supply grew at a 0.5 percent growth rate. That's down from the 1.4 percent rate of previous weeks and closer to the Fed's announced target of 5 to 7 percent.

Signs of rising inflation and interest rates have driven many investors from the stock market lately and into bonds, where yields are higher.

Analysts said the trend could continue indefinitely.

Israel, Egypt negotiations on Sinai stepped up

By United Press International

CHICAGO — Federal investigators were seeking to learn today if ex-Teamsters Union president James R. Hoffa withdrew about $1 million from a Chicago-based Teamsters pension fund before he was killed.

Hoffa won a $1.7 million lump sum settlement as his pension in July, 1971, when he agreed to resign all his Teamsters positions and the $1 million, may have been part of this, investigators said.

Michigan law enforcement officials and federal investigators in Washington both said they had been told by informants that Hoffa withdrew a large sum in pension money.

Michigan investigators said they were told the amount was about $1 million, while Washington sources said they were told the alleged withdrawal was $1.2 million.

Danley Shannon, director of the Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension fund with offices here relayed word to a reporter that any inquiry would have to be submitted in writing.

The team's preliminary appraisal of the proposals, received in Tel Aviv Wednesday, was transmitted Thursday to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Washington.

The appraisal repeated Israel's position and did not for the time being show any movement. "It is a final offer," the team said last week, the newspaper Ma'ariv said.

But the newspaper Yediot Ahronoth said "the tempo of the negotiations has gone into high gear" and "generally, there is optimism in Washington and Jerusalem, and in Jerusalem the chances for success have been estimated as up to 70 per cent."

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday the negotiations had reached their final stages and the results should be known in several weeks.

Kissinger has said he would be ready to resume his Middle East shuttle to conclude a second troop-disengagement agreement once the chances for success reach 90 per cent. He mediated the first pact, which was signed in January, 1974.

The Jerusalem Post quoted Israeli officials describing "significant improvements" in the Egyptian position but said there was no specific point — military, territorial or political — on which agreement had been reached.

"The knottiest problem, which will probably only be finally resolved during the Kissinger shuttle, is that of the military arrangements on the ground, especially in the area of the Sinai passes," the Post said. "One top source said he expected more arduous negotiations on that than on the line of withdrawal."

The newspaper of Rabin's ruling Labor party, Davar, said Egypt has relinquished its demand that Refidim, Israel's big forward air base in Sinai, be included as part of a new, limited force zone established under a new agreement.

Refidim, in northeast of the Mulla and Gidi passes in western Sinai and Israeli military leaders have expressed concern that any new Egyptian frontline too close to the installation would destroy its effectiveness in war time.

Rocky to study welfare abuses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing "too many abuses" in the welfare system, President Ford said Thursday the present program should be junked or tightened up.

Shortly after Ford taped his television interview, the government announced the nation's welfare roll had reached a record high in April, the latest month for which national statistics are available.

Despite the increase in April, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the rate of growth of the welfare rolls is slowing.

Ford said he will have Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller conduct a study of the welfare system in public hearings around the country this fall.

In an interview with Public Broadcasting System reporters, President Ford said "a good many Americans think that there are too many abuses" both in welfare and food stamps, and I think there are too many abuses."

"If we could correct the abuses, we could be more compassionate to the people who have a real need," he said.

"There is no doubt that the present welfare program either ought to be junked and a substitute put in its place, or the present welfare program has to be tightened up very, very greatly," he said.

Ford said "some time this fall" Vice President Rockefeller and the Domestic Council will conduct public hearings around the country to "give people throughout the country, and not just the Washington complex, an opportunity to express themselves, to tell us what they think is the answer to the welfare problem."

"There is an awful lot of wisdom out in the country on what is right and what is wrong about welfare, what we today ought to do about medicare, the costs and the program," he said. "Now, it is my judgment that we will come out of these public hearings, and we will come up with either some tightening of the existing welfare program or will offer a substitute, and there are a number of alternatives."

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday heavy unemployment was driving welfare rolls to a record high, 11,367,293 recipients in April. Despite the increase in April, the latest month for which national statistics are available, the rate of growth is slowing, HEW said.

The study, conducted by unemployed fathers, women and children receiving federal-state aid to families with dependent children in April was up 0.2 per cent from the 11,348,467 persons on the rolls in March. Growth rates in February and March in the previous months were 0.8 per cent each.

Defendants trimmed in Kent State suit

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Nine defendants have been dropped from the $46 million Kent State shootings civil damage suit, and the case against former Kent State University president Dr. Robert L. White appeared weakened by the testimony of a former police official.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs, the parents of the four Kent State students killed and nine wounded in a barrage of Ohio National Guard gunfire May 4, 1970, agreed Thursday to drop all claims against nine former Guardsmen.

White is a main defendant in the suit, which also charges Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, Guard commanders and Guardsmen denied students their constitutional rights.

Dying questioning of former Kent City Police Chief Roy Thompson, a defense witness, White's attorney asked about a May 4, 1970 meeting during which officials decided whether students would be allowed to assemble.

"He (White) was more or less told that actually we had control of what was going on," Thompson said. He characterized White as being "very quiet" and "nervous" during the meeting.

During cross-examination, Thompson said it was decided that no large assemblies would be allowed on the Kent campus or in the city of Kent.

Thompson was questioned about the nights of violence leading up to the May 4 shootings and said bottles, cans and other objects were thrown at police. In answer to a question from the plaintiffs attorney, he said his men did not fire any shots during the violence although they were hit by some thrown objects.

Ice cream tainted

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Good Humor Corp. has been charged with knowingly selling bacteria-laden ice cream and with keeping false records to mislead state inspectors.

"It's like finding out your mother doesn't know how to make apple pie," said Agriculture Commissioner John Dwyer in announcing the indictments Thursday.

The ice cream manufacturer was named in 244 counts involving the alleged sale of contaminated products. The indictment also names a Good Humor agent and a former quality control official.

The company, famous for its bell-ringing trucks selling a variety of ice cream concoctions, was indicted on 122 felony counts of falsifying business records and 122 misdemeanor counts of making and selling adulterated food. If convicted on all counts, the fines could total $1,281 million.

A Good Humor spokesman would not comment on the charge of falsification of records but said the bacteria found in samples of the firm's product, are "not harmful to health or dangerous in any way."

farm

Prime crop grows from spilled beans

HARRISBURG, Ill. (UPI)—Farmer Cecil Church is glad he spilled the beans two years ago. The resulting soybean crop could mean up to $7,000 more for him this fall.

Church, 54, who has been farming in the Big Ridge community four miles east of here for some 30 years, recalls he was riding to one of his fields when a box of soybeans fell and spilled.

"I picked most of them up by hand, but later a heavy rain came and washed what was left down the middle of a wheat field," said Church.

Later, Church had a streak of soybeans in that wheat field and they looked good. "I figured, if they were growing by an accident why not plant some," said Church. "But I never had the nerve to try it until this year."

So Church contracted with a helicopter service to broadcast soybean seed in a 40-acre wheat field May 15. The wheat was combined June 20, producing some 70 bushels to the acre.

"By that time we almost cut the tops off the soybeans," said Church. "They are about 2 1/2 feet tall now and it looks like they may make about 40 bushels an acre."

Another 40-acre wheat field was seeded at the same time but a different variety of

Normal farm practices exempt from new ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Assistant Army Secretary Victor V. Vessey assured farmers Wednesday that a new federal regulation regarding discharge of dredged or fill material into navigable waters does not apply to normal farming practices.

Vessey said some farm projects — such as damming of major streams or diking, dredging or filling wetlands — may require permits from the Army Corps of Engineers under the new regulation which was published July 25 in compliance with a federal court order.

But normal farming operations like plowing, cultivating and harvesting will not be affected, Vessey said in a statement. He said the new regulation will not cover farm conservation practices like terracing, land leveling and the building of check dams unless they take place in “navigable waters.”

Earlier, when the proposed new rules were initially being discussed, Corps of Engineers officials indicated many ordinary farming operations might be affected, touching off widespread protests by farmers. The order resulted from a lawsuit by environmentalists seeking greater controls over dredging and filling operations.

Vessey said there will be no interference with regular maintenance or emergency reconstruction of dikes, dams and levees, and dredge or fill operations on natural lakes of less than five acres will not be regulated.

Farmers will not be required to get permits to build stock watering ponds on any creek or stream where the normal flow is less than five cubic feet per second.

Grain decision pends

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Maritime Labor leaders worried about higher food prices will meet here Aug. 10 to consider their stand to prevent U.S. grain deals with the Soviet Union by refusing to load ships.

The International Longshoremen's Association, headed by Thomas W. Gleason, already has voted to refuse to

DYLOX whips bad bugs and worms that cut green bean yields and quality

Green beans are a short-season crop. When western and variegated cutworms, armyworms, Mexican bean beetles, lygus bugs and stink bugs destroy foliage or damage bean pods, you lose.

Let good bugs help by policing your bean fields until the bad bugs get out of hand. Then spray with DYLOX selective insecticide. DYLOX protection will knock out the bad bugs quickly. But it won't wipe out populations of predator insects. When DYLOX is used as directed, beneficials get time to re-establish dominance for extra natural insect protection that doesn't cost you a cent. And you'll grow bigger yields of tender, high-quality green beans that put more extra profit in your pocket.

Order DYLOX, the choosy bugger, from your chemical supplier right away.

SUN VALLEY — All secondary school children administrators and teachers should be given a copy of school regulations at the start of the school year, according to David Curry, specialist with the state department of education in Oregon.

He told school administrators the regulations must be clear and reasonable. Curry spoke before the annual state convention of school administrators and trustees gathered here.

Throughout his talk, Curry emphasized that courts across the United States have shifted attitudes regarding student rights since the 1940s. In the 1940s, Curry said, two statements could be made throughout the educational process — that going to school was a privilege and that the administration was standing in the place of a parent.

Both of those assumptions are false today, Curry said, due to district and federal court decisions. Curry said the Supreme Court of the United States in recent decisions have determined that going to school is a right — not a privilege. In addition, administrators no longer shall act as parents but shall afford due process of law to children who are accused of violation of the rules.

Trustees and administrators must realize students have a right to all rules that are set in the district, he said. Specific charges must be presented to the student and the student must be heard.

A definite procedure must be outlined and set forth affording due process of all grievances, he said.

"Too often trustees find out in court it isn't what they did, but how they did it," Curry said. Jim Hargis, Idaho deputy attorney general, agreed with Curry that the student accused of a wrong doing must be heard before a decision is made to suspend or expel him.

However, Hargis disagreed that recent decisions have made the act of going to school a right instead of a privilege. "Hargis said if the student today has a right to go to school he should also have a right not to go. However, state law sets down rigid compulsory attendance rules."

"The student does not have a free choice not to attend," Hargis said. Recent court decisions, he said, have ruled in favor of students on such issues as length of hair because trustees have not been able to show how that affects the health, welfare or academic progress of schools. Hargis warned the group that trustees and administrators "have the legal responsibility to make disciplinary decisions on the basis of cause and effect instead of likes and dislikes."

Under a recent Supreme Court decision, Hargis said, Idaho education boards of trustees must hear from the accused person before suspension.

He said previously the person had to be heard only before expulsion.

Under the recent court test case a board must show all the facts before making a decision. "You can't have all the facts without the student's opinion," he warned.

today in brief

TF theft reported

TWIN FALLS — Rick Allen, 525 N. Washington, reported the theft of a tool box to city police Friday morning. After two investigating officers he was awakened by a noise about 2:30 a.m. Friday and found someone had taken the tools from his pickup. The loss is estimated at about $300.

Buhl man arrested

TWIN FALLS — Daniel Garza, Jr., 30, Buhl, was arrested Thursday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Garza was brought in on a warrant from the Buhl Police Department in connection with an incident where he allegedly assaulted his wife, using a knife. His bond is set at $2,500.

Rodeo tickets available

FILER — Reserved seat tickets for the four nights of the Twin Falls Rodeo Sept. 3 through 6 are now available at the fair office in Filer.

Tickets will be $3, the same as last year. Those wishing to purchase tickets may call the fair office, 326-4396.

Horseshoe tourney set

BUHL — Horseshoe pitchers are invited to participate in the Buhl Open Horseshoe Tournament at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at Eastman Park.

The handicap tournament will include both singles and doubles. It is an annual tournament sponsored by the Buhl Recreation Association.

Anyone needing more information may call 543-5713.

2 men killed

By United Press International
A stabbing at a Pocatello apartment and a shooting in a Soda Springs bar have killed Wayne B. Bacon, 56, Pocatello, and Charles Hogmans, 34, who recently moved to Soda Springs from Missoula, Mont.

A third man, Willard T. King, 42, of Soda Springs, was injured in the shooting but was released from the hospital after receiving treatment for the wound. Soda Springs police detained Larry A. Ruth, 30, who is believed to be from Colorado, but declined to say what charges they would bring against him.

Pocatello police said Bacon's body was found shortly after Thursday when police went to his address to investigate a burglary. They found his body in the bedroom. He had been stabbed in the chest.

Kimberly girl crowned queen of Gooding rodeo

GOODING — Jane Pitts, 18, Kimberly, was crowned queen of the 1975 Gooding County Fair and Rodeo Wednesday night.

Miss Pitts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pitts, received the reins of office from last year's queen, Jana Esterbrook, during half-time at the final night of rodeo activities in Gooding, making the official closing of the 1975 fair and rodeo.

Miss Pitts is a 1975 graduate of Kimberly High School and placed second in the Fifth District High School Rodeo Queen contest.

First runnerup in the Gooding contest was Robin Jewett, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Jewett, Gooding. Second runnerup was Sherrille Muir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ike Muir, Jerome.

Nine girls competed for the junior princess title with Heidi Gnesa, 17, receiving the honor. Mrs. Gnesa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Gnesa, Gooding. She is a 1975 graduate of Gooding High School and is currently serving as vice president of the 4-H horse club and is also a member of the Purple Sage Riding Club. Idaho Quarter Horse Breeders Association and the Future Farmers of America.

Elizabeth Osborne, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Osborne, Gooding, was chosen first runnerup and Miss Congeniality. Second runnerup was Jonie James, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.M. James, Gooding.

Activities are still underway at the Gooding County Fairgrounds with the 1975 Quarter Horse Show beginning at 8 a.m. today. The youth halter showman, horseman, reining and both young and adult western pleasure classes were scheduled.

The show will continue through Saturday with activities beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday with the adult and young jumping classes, followed by English pleasure and trail classes. Saturday's all-around schedule will include western riding, breakaway roping, barrel racing, cut roping and team roping.

Airport protests planned

It wouldn't be till five miles south that the noise from a four-engine jet landing or taking off would be considered "quiet" on a standard decibel scale.

The environmental impact statement was "vague," Ms. Humphrey said. The statement fails to note how many homes are in the noise area of the planned airport.

Noise is different things to different people, she said. "People are going to be annoyed" if four-engine jets take off or land four times a day near a usually quiet area. "It's something that wasn't there before," she said.

Commissioner Cover and city manager Jean Milar had another objection to the environmental impact statement. They say the city and the county never received the draft environmental statement preceding the final one released last week.

Milar said the draft statement should have been part of an "A95 review," which he said is required in any planning process. Projects should be defined and submitted to all local levels of government for comment in any project that is federally funded. The fact that the city did not get a draft statement was "technically improper," Milar said.

The city sent a response to the FAA after public hearings in March 1973, Milar said. Milar also criticized the impact statement for using "generalizations" like "reasonable assurance" and "minimizing impact."

"When you talk about disturbing wildlife, groundwater ... I feel you must be more positive ... the general public wants something more specific," he said.

"Several things in the environmental impact statement are avoided and (the planners say) they will be taken care of later on in a master study," Milar said.

Milar, who also recently drafted a letter to the FAA, said the plan was "capricious" because it did not involve the city government.

"They have had the opportunity to review it," according to the FAA's chief of airport planning, George Bailey, Seattle. "I sincerely believe the opportunity was there," he said. "If later, for some reason, the city did not get notification through the regular clearinghouse, that's an internal procedure that's beyond our control," he said.

Amtrak plans Gem-service

TWIN FALLS — Amtrak is currently preparing criteria under which experimental passenger rail service will be provided to Idaho and two other states, Maine and South Dakota.

United Press International quotes Maine Sen. William D. Hathaway as saying formal announcement of when the services will begin for each of the three states will be made next year.

The service depends on the availability of equipment, but could begin in late 1977, Hathaway said.

He said the latest move toward rail service for the states followed a transfer of responsibility for naming the experimental routes from the Department of Transportation to Amtrak.

Amtrak president Paul Reistrup has agreed to initiate the service and expects to deliver the criteria to Congress next month for its approval, Hathaway said.

Amtrak officials said that when the criteria are accepted they will proceed to provide rail service to the three states which do not now have passenger rail service at the rate of one route per year, the senator said.

Amtrak has almost 700 new cars on order with delivery already in progress.

"I must reiterate that the routes cannot be named until such time as Congress approves the necessary criteria and the criteria have been met," UPI quoted Hathaway as saying.

Idaho Magazine back Sunday

The Idaho Magazine will return to its former position in Sunday's paper, beginning Sunday. The magazine had been carried to Friday's editions last week, but because of a number of public requests it will be returned to the Sunday paper.

The change will permit a return to the former church news deadline, at 11 a.m. on Thursdays.

Humanism needed

SUN VALLEY — Idaho (UPI) — Educators must not lose track of humanism in their return to the teaching of basic skills, a California reading consultant said today.

"We can have monsters who are very good at reading, writing and arithmetic," Eleanor Robinson, national reading consultant for the University of California, told the annual conference of school administrators and trustees.

"If there's anything we need today it is a human individual," she said. "By human I mean the ability to put yourself into somebody else's shoes."

"The Indians have a saying, 'You don't know a person's heart until you've walked a mile in his moccasins.'"

Because of the huge amount of money spent on education today, Miss Robinson said, the public is demanding accountability — by looking at what it is getting for its money.

Miss Robinson said that the emphasis on better skills "is to make certain the children educated today are functionally literate."

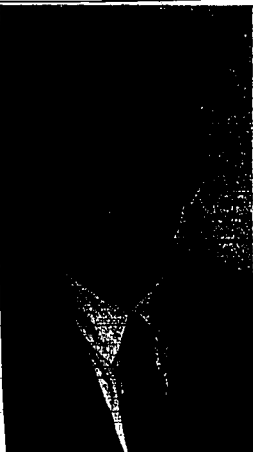

"We're accountable to these kids and parents to produce the most adequate citizens we can," she said.

To find out what is needed tomorrow, she said, educators must look at the use of today and the problems confronting them. Many of these youngsters have rejected the attitudes and lifestyles of their parents and have turned to goals that are less desirable," she said.

"What we need are committed teachers," she said. "Change comes about by commitments."

Change by action alone leads only to violence, she said.

Another speaker at the concluding session of the conference, David Curry, a secondary education specialist with the Oregon Department of Education, outlined to the Idaho educators a year-old Oregon program in which new emphasis is being placed on competency training in the schools. Under this program, the Oregon Department of Education is sending all school districts to review their graduation requirements so the graduates are able to cope in society.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, AUGUST 9, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have much emotional warmth now and are eager to make conditions at home more comfortable. Show love on the depth of your affection instead of making this person for granted.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more thoughtful of family today and try to make improvements to environment. Evening is fine for entertaining.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Keep appointments with persons who can help you to become more expert in your line of endeavor. Attend the social tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss with a financial expert how you can have a greater income in the future. A new project should start without delay.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) First come to right decisions as to what should be done about personal matters and then carry through.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) You can carry through with responsibilities of a personal nature which you have delayed in doing for a long time.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22) Contact those friends who can best help you where personal ambitions are concerned. Attend an important meeting tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to handle any civic affairs. Take care of a credit matter and avoid trouble. Find a better way to advance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Bring those ideas you have to an expert and find out how to commercialize on them. Avoid one who wastes your time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Doing something kind for those who have done you favors in the past is only right. Think along constructive lines.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discussing mutual aims with an associate can bring about a far better understanding. Make new plans for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget going off on tangents and get all those duties behind you that have accumulated. Take health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact friends and make plans for recreation.

Show more kindness to friends who have helped you in the past.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those who need to be encouraged in order to come out of that wall of shyness that is in this nature. This could become a most successful life, particularly in the field of selling.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

You know the men who go to matrimonial agencies to look for prospective wives? About 75 per cent of such fellows are said to be neurotic. Women who go to agencies to find husbands, however, are normal, mostly. The Marriage Society of Great Britain, a non-profit outfit set up to bring together lonely people, found that out. Interesting, if true.

ANOTHER DISTINCTION merited by Mark Twain's great novel "Tom Sawyer" is the fact it was the first typed manuscript ever submitted to a publisher by an American author. In 1875, that was.

THE JACK OF HEARTS in every deck of cards, it's said, is the memorial to a Frenchman named Jacques Cour.

PRAYER

Q. "Louie, do you ever pray?"
A. Doesn't everybody in one way or another? This morning's prayer: "Lord, give me this day my daily new notion and forgive me the bunk I thought yesterday."

Q. "WHAT BIG TOWN is the most remote from any sea?"
A. That would be a place called Wulumuk in the Sinkiang province of China. It's about 1,400 miles from the nearest coastline.

Q. "WHERE'S the oldest farm in the United States?"
A. Near El Paso, Texas. Don't know its exact acreage, but understand it has produced a crop of something or other every year since 1540.

HOT TEA

Hot tea must be the drink of the intellectuals. When the U.S. Army studied food preferences among soldiers, it learned that the higher the education of its uniformed personnel, the more likely said servicemen would take tea over coffee.

STORY IS that Henry Ford gets as much as $125,000 per year for doing those TV commercials.

WHAT you can't name the second largest city in the British empire just before the American Revolution? Say Philadelphia. Only London was bigger.

AMONG PARROTS, at least, it is the male that's the best talker. In fact, the female hardly talks at all. Echolalia is what the science boys call parrot talk—that's the word for the repetition of noises without any understanding of what they mean.

Shoshone aides get salary

SHOSHONE — For the first time Shoshone's mayor and councilmen will be paid.

Shoshone City Council passed an ordinance Tuesday night establishing salaries for the mayor and council members beginning Jan. 1, 1976.

The ordinance calls for a salary of $1,200 yearly for the mayor with $300 for each council member. It also provides that council members who assume the duties of mayor during his absence shall receive $15 per meeting. The sum to be deducted from the salary of the mayor.

There had been no salary for the city officials previously.

council regarding the need for a planning and zoning law for the city. The state law requiring all local governmental agencies to provide the planning and zoning laws by Jan. 1, 1977, went into effect July 1.

The council will secure a copy of the Idaho building code to study.

In other business Tuesday night, the council received $202.05 as its share of fines and fees in the Lincoln County Magistrate Court.

Received the flood area map showing necessary changes in the local area.

Issued building permits to Ron Gomez, Doc Dee Gomez and Kathy Graham.

Reached 10-year agreement with the Union Pacific Railroad to allow the city to install street lights within the city limits on railroad property where necessary.

Decided to study the best means of repairing the bridge over Little Wood River at the Grape Street crossing.

Work by city crews in updating and installing traffic control signs in the city to meet state regulations is progressing. Funds for the work are coming from a federal grant via the Idaho Department of Transportation.

Considerable discussion was held by the

Thanks anyway

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — Rep. Harold Runnels, D-N.M., routinely sends a letter of congratulations to constituents who have babies, but he made a mistake in sending one to Isabel Bishop.

Mrs. Bishop sent Runnels back a letter thanking him for his thoughtfulness, but said she was 77 years old and a widow.

News about MV servicemen

TWIN FALLS — Marine Pfc. David K. Asay has completed courses as administration and personnel clerk at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

He is now stationed at the Marine Headquarters, Arlington, Va., where he is assigned to officers quarterly records. Asay served three weeks at the Vietnamese refugee camp while at Camp Pendleton.

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Air Force Maj. William N. Stowe has been transferred from Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, where he was chief of personnel inspection for the Military Airlift Command.

His new position will be chief of education and training for the Pacific Air Forces at Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii.

Stowe, his wife, Min, and young Kim, were recent visitors at the Doug Neville home in Twin Falls.

Controversy unresolved

JEROME — The controversy over townhouses in Jerome has still not been resolved as principal players in the dispute failed to attend Tuesday's city council meeting.

Low Rowland, Jerome County developer and his attorney Robert Paine, Twin Falls, were expected to attend Tuesday night's meeting and request the council to vote on a townhouse ordinance. However, Rowland and Paine said Wednesday they will seek a mandamus action in Fifth Judicial Court that will force the City Council to take the vote on the rezoning of Rowland's land.

Rowland said he thought it would have been futile to have attended the meeting Tuesday. The townhouse question was not discussed by council members.

Rowland said if his mandamus suit fails he will file a subsequent lawsuit asking for damages resulting from the delay in his project in the construction of townhouses in the 500 block of South Fillmore.

Rowland has proposed that the South Fillmore site and two other locations be used for a 30-unit low-cost housing apartment complex. He has applied to the Idaho Housing Authority for funding assistance for the project.

Rowland said he feels the Fillmore site would be the best area for the apartment complex. He says he is following through with plans to build apartment units if necessary.

The City Council has issued Rowland building permits for an apartment complex after a split vote at the July 14 council meeting. The vote was broken by Mayor Charles Hancock.

Pool to close Aug. 17

JEROME — The Jerome City Council has voted to close the Jerome City Swimming Pool Aug. 17.

Ed J. Rowland, city council director, said the decision to close the pool on the 17th was made because the Jerome County Fair starts Aug. 19 and school starts Aug. 25.

The council gave permission to Howard Duflois, chief of police, for the purchase of a new police car. The department will purchase the vehicle from Little Chevrolet for a bid price of $4,000.

Some discussion was held on the merits of switching to a car with a smaller engine for patrol purposes, but a decision was postponed.

Kenneth L. Bear, representing a group of citizens living in the area of Second Avenue West and Cedar Street requested the council to place stop signs and traffic warning signs in the area. Bear said that Second Avenue from Birch to the gates of the fairgrounds has been used as a thru street and heavy pedestrian traffic in the area warrants more protection.

Approval was given by the council to the citizens' request for a stop sign at the intersection of Cedar and Second and at the fairgrounds gate. It was also agreed that at least one of the trees on the corner of Cedar and Second should be removed.

Bill Number 34, requiring the installation of mail box postholes in all subdivisions was passed by the council after the third reading.

Bill Number 41, annexing Cemetery Road was read for the second time.

On recommendation of Duflois and Evans the council agreed not to close North Cedar Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues. Duflois said the street will eventually be needed as a feeder street if development starts to the north.

Bids called for crates

BOISE — The Boise National Forest is calling for bids for the manufacture and delivery of 8,500 seedling crates.

Specifications call for delivery within 30 days of awarding the contract.

The crates are to be delivered to the U.S. Forest Service, Harbor Flat Railroad siding, Boise. Bids will be opened Sept. 4 at 2 p.m. and specifications will be available to interested bidders after Aug. 14.
